I. Background

This report identifies the necessary minimum set of data elements the Consumer Expenditure Survey shall collect to satisfy the needs of the Consumer Expenditure Surveys Division (CE), the Consumer Prices and Price Indexes Division (CPI), and the Price and Index Number Research Division (PINR). The purposes of this report are 1) to provide a basis for ongoing survey redesign discussions and 2) to serve as a living document that will be updated with any changes in the priorities of the program offices represented.

The mission of the CE is to collect, produce and disseminate information that presents a statistical picture of consumer spending for use by government agencies and private data users. First and foremost, these data are used by the CPI to estimate weights for the consumer goods and services classification structure used in calculation of its indexes, commonly referred to as the 'market basket' of consumer purchases. More specifically, the CPI uses CE data to estimate annualized expenditures, for the total urban population and the urban wage-earner population groups, for the CPI-U and CPI-W price indexes. These expenditure weights are currently updated biennially. The CPI also uses CE data to estimate monthly expenditure weights for the urban population to construct the Chained CPI index series (C-CPI-U). Furthermore, the CPI uses annualized expenditure estimates from CE data to probabilistically select entry-level item categories for pricing in its C&S Pricing Survey, and to make certain quote-level weight adjustments to the sample of unique items priced in the survey (i.e., the percent-of-POPs adjustment).

For the CE itself, the objectives are threefold: 1) to disseminate data on consumer expenditures and demographic/socioeconomic characteristics in a number of formats, 2) to provide education and assistance in the use of the data; and 3) to conduct analytical studies. The CE publishes tabulations of all expenditures nationally and for selected subgroups, provides comprehensive annual public-use microdata for the analysis of the expenditure patterns of individual consuming units in the U.S., and supports a variety of economic research, such as determining poverty thresholds and analyzing spending patterns by income level (CE Conceptual Framework, 2009). As an internal user of CE data, the PINR uses CE data in a number of different research projects. In cooperation with the Bureau of the Census, PINR is at the forefront of using CE data to produce the Supplemental Poverty Measure, an alternative to the historical income measures of poverty.

Other Federal agencies are also prominent users of CE data. The Internal Revenue Service employs CE data to derive its optional state and local sales tax table. The U.S. Department of Agriculture produces its annual report on expenditures on children by families, a resource used in establishing child support and foster care guidelines, from CE data. As a final example, the Department of Defense uses CE data to compute cost of living allowances for Armed Forces families.

The universe of CE data users extends to state governments, public policy think tanks, academic institutions, and private companies. Topics such as the distributional effects of consumption-based taxes, analysis of income and consumption inequality, and poverty measurement are addressed employing CE data.

This document discusses those data requirements that enable the CE to fulfill its mission, but does not discuss survey design features necessary to meet those requirements. It addresses both expenditure and non-expenditure requirements.

While these requirements satisfy the basic mission of the CE, each division desires additional features in terms of expenditure categories, non-expenditure data items, and other survey-related functionalities that would enhance the CE. These features are presented in Appendix E of this report.

Section II presents the set of expenditure categories that the new CE survey must provide. Section III details the non-expenditure data items the survey must also collect. These consist of demographic and socioeconomic characteristics variables. In Section

IV, there are recommendations concerning qualities or features of the data assigned to these categories, such as population coverage and periodicity.

II. Expenditure Categories

A list of broadly-defined expenditure item categories has been developed that represent the minimum set of expenditures the redesigned CE survey must produce. These categories satisfy CPI's expenditure class (EC) level of detail, but do not meet the level of elementary item stratum level (ELI) currently defined within CPI's market basket structure. These categories will supply sufficient detail to support the production of publication tables and public-use microdata by the CE Division. In and of themselves, these categories are not required to be individually represented in these data products. They also provide the detail necessary to support the research agenda of the Price and Index Number Research Division, particularly for the development of the Supplemental Poverty Measure.

In determining what constitutes an expenditure, decisions have been made concerning when an expenditure has been considered to occur, how it is to be valued, how it is paid for, and for whom the expenditure has been made. Expenditures are defined as the acquisition costs, including sales taxes, as measured by actual financial obligation at the time of acquisition in dollar terms, for any type of payment method, of all goods and services that are acquired from outside the consuming unit. To obtain the actual financial obligation or out-of-pocket expense, third-party reimbursements paid at the time of acquisition or at a later date should be accounted for in determining the amount of expenditure. The goods and services acquired are intended to increase the current economic well-being (or consumption) of the consuming unit. Goods and services acquired for persons outside the consuming unit (gifts) are included. Those purchases or portions of purchases directly assignable to business purposes are excluded. Also excluded are periodic credit or installment payments on goods or services already acquired. Goods and services obtained through non-financial means, such as home production, barter, and in-kind receipts do not qualify as well.

The team used two base source documents as inputs to determine the expenditure categories needed to meet the requirements of each program. The CPI provided a spreadsheet that contained CPI EC, Item Strata, ELI, and Universal Classification Code

(UCC) detail that form the basis for creating the CPI market basket. An earlier version of this spreadsheet was part of the Casey paper from June 17, 2010 on CPI requirements for the CE. The CE requirements were outlined in Appendix C. Level of Expenditure Category Detail Required by CE of the data requirements overview document produced on May 24, 2011. The Appendix A presents the 126 expenditure categories decided upon by the team. Beside each category are listed the current expenditure items, designated by their UCC number, that comprise the item category.

III. Nonexpenditure items

While the primary goal of the CE survey is to collect accurate expenditure data on consumer purchases, there are nonexpenditure data items, such as demographic characteristics and socioeconomic variables that are required to satisfy the needs of the CE, CPI and PINR Divisions. These data items serve such functions as classification variables for the publication tables produced by the CE Division, as qualifying variables for eligibility of expenditures in producing market baskets for the CPI-U, CPI-W, and CPI-E populations, and as explanatory variables in economic studies within PINR and the outside research community.

Appendix B presents the nonexpenditure variables that must be collected in the redesigned CE survey. The first column shows the variable name while the second column shows the categories the variable should identify. While continuous variables are typically preferred, there are many numeric variables where less detailed categorical breakdowns are sufficient to meet the needs of the CE, CPI, and PINR Divisions.

In addition, to provide insight into what variables were selected and how the breakdown categories were chosen, the team felt it would be useful to display under each variable, which division(s) required the variable, the general purpose for which it was needed, and the desired variable categories to fulfill that purpose. The CE Branch of the Statistical Methods Division (SMD) was included as there were some variables that were required for weighting and nonresponse adjustment. The third and fourth columns of the table show the division and rationale.

Other useful demographic and socioeconomic variables may be collected as resources permit, but should not be considered integral to the core scope of the CE. They will need to compete with other items for inclusion in the survey, based on available resources and respondent burden.

IV. Other required data features

Population. Coverage for the national, civilian, non-institutional population is necessary from the CE. In order to provide national coverage, the CE must measure spending in both urban and rural areas.

Reference unit. To achieve its goal of collecting expenditure data from the U.S. civilian non-institutional population, the redesigned survey must be able to assign expenditure data to a reference unit composed of an individual or group of persons that behave as an organized unit in making expenditure decisions. More particularly this means either:

1) a single financially-independent person living alone, sharing a household with others, or rooming in a private home, lodging house, or hotel, who does not share major expenditures with others, or 2) a group of persons, usually living together, who pool their income and make joint decisions regarding their major items of expense. The CE has identified this entity as a "consumer unit" or "CU" and it has been the historical collection unit since the 1972-73 survey.

The consumer unit is very similar to, but may provide more accurate expenditure data than, a "household". The Census Bureau, the data collection agency for the CE, defines a household as all people living in a housing unit with a shared entrance. A household can include persons paying jointly for housing space but who do not share other living expenses. In addition, if household members are independent agents with respect to their spending decisions, it is unlikely any particular household member will know the expenditures of all other members, so the aggregate totals for the household are not collectible.

The formal definition of a CU in the CE is: (1) all members of a particular household who are related by blood, marriage, adoption, or other legal arrangements; or (2) a person living alone or sharing a household with others or living as a roomer in a private home or lodging house or in permanent living quarters in a hotel or motel, but who is financially independent; or (3) two or more persons living together who pool their income to make joint expenditure decisions.

While the CU is the current choice as the reference unit for the organization of CE data, this may not be the case in the future. As living arrangements among people evolve, it may be that individuals will form new organizational units that are theoretically more appropriate than the CU, as currently defined, for CE purposes. Such units would still be required to make joint spending decisions and exhibit financial interdependence among their members. These are areas for further comparative research.

Sample size. The sample size of the redesigned survey must be sufficient to allow the CPI to (1) produce reliable monthly expenditure estimates as needed for the C-CPI-U national index, and (2) replace its cost weights every two years for its national and subnational CPI-U and CPI-W indexes. This is considered a minimum requirement, since it would be optimal for the sample to be large enough to permit replacement of cost weights on an annual basis. However, it is highly unlikely that resources will be available to allow such an expansion.

For the CE, the sample size must be large enough to provide a sufficient number of usable interviews to produce reliable annual estimates at the level of expenditure detail shown in Appendix C, both nationally and for the standard one-way tables currently produced. According to general guidelines from SMD, it is desirable that the CE's highest-level expenditure estimates—the mean annual total expenditures per CU at the national level—have a coefficient of variation of one percent or less. The CE's current publication criterion requires that expenditure estimates shown in the standard publication tables must have a coefficient of variation below 25 percent. The sample size must also be sufficient to guarantee that the public use microdata meet the U.S. Census Disclosure Review Board's confidentiality requirements.

Time period and periodicity. To support the CPI-U, annual expenditure estimates for calendar base-periods are required. The C-CPI-U requires expenditure estimates for each item-area in each calendar month.

The CE data are currently published as annual tables containing the latest four quarters of information on a rolling basis every six months, with a potential shift to publication every three months. Therefore, the requirement for CE is to be able to identify the quarter in which an expenditure was made and to publish data within six months of the end of each data collection quarter. In summary, the redesigned CE must be able to produce annual, quarterly, and monthly data to satisfy CE and CPI needs.

Panel component. The CE Interview Survey estimates and microdata currently include four quarters of data from CUs from interview waves 2 - 5. This panel component allows microdata users to track spending for a CU over the course of an entire year. The CE considers the ability to support micro-level analyses over a 12-month period to be a requirement. This can be accomplished by either of two base designs:

- A design similar to the current Interview Survey design which collects a continuous 12 months of spending data
- 2. A design based on collect spending data covering a minimum reference period of three months that are 12 months apart

Here are other key features of the requirement for base design 1:

- The reference period for collecting spending data is flexible. The current design meets this option since it collects the continuous 12 months of spending data through four interviews, each with a three month reference period. Alternatively, a design employing three interviews with a four month reference period over 12 months would also meet the option.
- The supporting data (demographics, income, assets and liabilities) must cover the same 12-month period as the expenditures. Data on income and assets and liabilities should be collected at the endpoints of the panel. The reference period for these items need not match the reference period for expenditures, as long as users will be able to calculate a 12-month estimate for income and the change in assets and liabilities that matches the 12-month time period for expenditures.
- Information on the roster of household members, such as which members are living in the household, must be updated each interview.

Here are other key features of the requirement for base design 2:

- The reference period for collecting spending and income data must be a minimum of three months. Thus, for example, a CU interviewed in January 2013 would provide at a minimum expenditure and income data for October December 2012. The CU would be interviewed again in January 2014 and provide at a minimum expenditure and income data for October December 2013. The reference period for expenditures and income do not need to be the same as long as users can estimate the 12-month change in both.
- Demographic data and the stock value for assets and liabilities must be collected at each interview.
- Information on the roster of household members, such as which members are living in the household, must be updated each interview.

Here are other features of the overall requirement:

- A synthetic panel does not meet the requirement since the survey will not collect sufficient information about each CU to permit a valid matching of expenditures between CU's.
- While the requirement is to collect data from the same CU over time, the design will not be based on "following" CUs that move from one location to another.
- It is not required that the 12 months over which spending or income are measured match the calendar year. Thus, depending on the design chosen, a CU may be interviewed only one time within a calendar year.

The CPI does not require the CE data to come from a panel of respondents.

Full profile of spending in microdata. The redesigned CE survey must incorporate the capability of producing microdata files where a full profile of expenditures is available for each sampled unit for either design of the panel component. To the extent that the future redesign employs a variety of modes of primary data collection from sample units, (for example, by using a web diary, telephone interview, or scanner data), or incorporates data from secondary sources (administrative data, data from other special-purpose expenditure surveys), a methodology to integrate the data from these multiple sources will also be required.

Appendix D. Summary of the requirements

Category	Requirement
1. Expenditures	A minimum set of 126 expenditure item categories has been assembled that will satisfy the current needs of the three divisions. The new survey should collect data that can produce estimates for these categories.
2. Non-expenditure items	A minimum set of 49 demographic and socioeconomic variables that function as classification variables for publication tables, qualifying variables for eligibility in CPI indexes, explanatory variables common in economic analysis, and processing variables for weighting and nonresponse adjustment. They include geographic detail, income, assets and liabilities, and inventories of vehicles and household durables.
3. Population	Sufficient coverage data for the national, civilian, non- institutional population including data for urban and rural areas is required. No change to current requirements
4. Collection unit	An individual or group of persons that behave as an organized unit in making expenditure decisions. It is embodied by the current survey entity, "consumer unit" or "CU".
5. Sample size	The sample size should be sufficient: 1) to produce reliable monthly expenditure estimates as needed for the C-CPI-U, 2) to allow the CPI to replace its cost weights every two years for national and subnational indexes, 3) to allow the CE to produce reliable annual estimates for the required level of expenditure detail both nationally and for standard one-way tables currently produced, and 4) to allow the CE to produce microdata that meets Census's confidentiality requirements.
6. Time period and periodicity	The production of annual, quarterly, and monthly data is necessary to satisfy CE and CPI needs.
7. Panel component	The ability to measure the change in spending over a 12-month period for a CU is required. If monthly data are not collected, the 12-month change must be based on estimates over a minimum 3-month reference period that are one year apart. Supporting data (demographics, income, assets/liabilities) must cover same 12 month period as expenditures. Income and assets/liabilities should be collected at endpoints of survey. (12-month period for spending and supporting data need not match calendar year.) Information on CU members should be updated at each visit.
Full profile of spending in microdata	Capability of producing microdata files where a full profile of expenditures is available for each sampled unit

Appendix E. Enhancements for the Redesigned CE Survey

This report describes the minimum set of requirements that the redesigned CE survey should incorporate to satisfy the needs of the CE, CPI and PINR Divisions. Were resources available, these are a number of additional features that could be added to the survey that would enhance its utility in meeting the mission of the survey. Following is a brief description of some of these potential enhancements.

Additional variables for the production of the Supplemental Poverty Measure (SPM):

There are a number of variables in the current CE design that are used in the production of the SPM, some of which are carried over into the requirements for the redesigned CE survey. However, there are other variables not currently collected that would enhance the production of the SPM. They have not been made part of the requirements, due to the uncertainty of future funding for the SPM.

Following is an exhaustive list of additional variables: total value of SNAP benefits, SNAP benefits used to purchase food (yes/no), value of SNAP benefits actually used; number of children in school lunch (breakfast) (milk) program, school lunch (breakfast) (milk) purchased at full price, reduced price or free, how often is school lunch (breakfast) (milk) purchased; who receives WIC benefits, how often are benefits received, value of the benefit, received via check or debit card; for CU's receiving rent subsidies: public housing or voucher housing, rent for a similar non-subsidized unit; for CU's receiving owner subsidies: owner purchased unit at lower price due to participation in government housing program (yes/no), price of subsidized unit, price of non-subsidized unit; participation in energy assistance program (yes/no), how often did CU participate, amount of subsidy; participation in any other subsidy program (particularly, food, clothing, shelter, and utilities) (yes/no), how often did CU participate; value of subsidy; non-work related travel expenses; value of home-produced food, clothing, shelter and utilities.

Ideally, expenditures would be collected for a 12-month period. Longitudinal weights would also be needed to correct for attrition.

Addition of TPOPS outlet information:

The CPI requires a contemporaneous, representative sampling frame of outlets for all priced CPI market basket items in each CPI sampling area, once every four years. Given the expenditure item categories in Appendix A, approximately 71 of the categories would require outlet information. The frame requirement would be to collect the name of at least one outlet associated with each expenditure reported. In practice, collection could be governed by matrix sampling as the CPI rotation requirement only requires outlet information for each category once over a four-year period in each PSU, and be administered to a sub-sample of respondents, where possible, to obtain sufficient outlet frame sizes.

Collecting this outlet information is not a requirement for the redesigned CE survey. However, CPI would use any outlet information that becomes available in the process of collecting expenditure data in the current proposed Diary/Recall/Records design. The Design Team will consider incorporating outlet questions in the redesign where feasible.

Expanded sample size to support annual replacement of cost weights for CPI:

This was noted earlier in the report in the section on sample size. Resource constraints would have to be relaxed considerably to permit this. This is highly unlikely to occur in the foreseeable future.
