The Delmarva Peninsula, located on the East Coast of the United States, comprises portions of three States—Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia. Delmarva’s fourth quarter 2007 average weekly wage was $43 below the national average.

On the Delmarva Peninsula, wages were highest in the two counties that are part of the Wilmington, Delaware-New Jersey-Maryland Metropolitan Division—New Castle, Delaware ($1,031) and Cecil, Maryland ($838); only New Castle’s average weekly wage was higher than the national average of $898 in fourth quarter of 2007.
Average weekly wages by county on the Delmarva Peninsula, fourth quarter 2007

(Underlined States average = $898)