

Even though driver/sales workers and truck drivers experienced the highest number of fatalities, the highest fatality rates were recorded by fishers and by aircraft pilots and flight engineers. The fatality rate of 147.2 recorded by fishers was nearly 37 times the fatality rate of 4.0 for all workers.

Logging workers and structural iron and steel workers also recorded high fatality rates.

Selected occupations with high fatality rates, 2006

SOURCE: U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, U.S. Department of Labor, 2009.