

MONTHLY LABOR REVIEW

Volume 130, Number 12
December 2007

A time to work: recent trends in shift work and flexible schedules 3

Many U.S. workers have varied work schedules; the demands of the industry are the chief determinant of the use of shift work and flexible schedules

Terence M. McMenamin

Estimating economic losses in the Bay Area from a magnitude-6.9 earthquake 16

Data produced by BLS and California can be used to assess potential business and economic losses when combined with seismic hazards or other disasters

Richard J. Holden, Donna Bahls, and Charles Real

Are male veterans at greater risk for nonemployment than nonveterans? 23

Veterans as a group do not have a higher risk of nonemployment than their nonveteran peers; however, the risk varies greatly by age cohort and ethnicity

Greg A. Greenberg and Robert A. Rosenheck

Comparative civilian labor force statistics, 10 countries: a visual essay 32

Jennifer L. Raynor

Departments

Labor month in review	2
Précis	38
Book reviews	39
Current labor statistics	41
Index to volume 129	117

Please see page 2 for an important notice regarding subscriptions.