Michael Wolf

Michael Wolf is the Division Chief for Employment Projections at the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). Over the course of the past 20 years, he has been involved in nearly all aspects of the BLS projections program. He currently leads the development of ten-year projections of the labor force, macroeconomy, and employment by industry and occupation, as well as the BLS career information publications, the Occupational Outlook Handbook and Career Outlook. He also conducts research on labor market and workforce topics, having published studies on offshore outsourcing, high tech industry employment, and the job outlook by education.